Unit 1: Building Background Knowledge: Powerful Stories—Slavery in America

In this unit, students are introduced to the topic, guiding questions, and central text of the module: Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass (excerpts only). By the end of the unit, they will understand the historical context of this text as well as the tools and processes they will use as they read and analyze it. Their analysis will focus on Douglass’s purpose and how he tells his story in order to accomplish it. In the beginning of the unit, students listen to and discuss The People Could Fly (a picture book by Virginia Hamilton). This book introduces the topic of slavery as well as one of the module’s guiding questions: What gives stories and poems their enduring power? The next set of lessons introduces the central text and its context. Through reading informational texts and working with images, students build their understanding of slavery, the life of Frederick Douglass, and the debate over slavery in which his voice was so significant. In these lessons, students focus on analyzing texts and supporting their analysis with textual evidence (RI.7.1). After a pause to launch independent reading for the module, students begin their work with the Narrative. As they read excerpts from the first two chapters, students consider Douglass’s purposes, practice the routines they will use for reading this text, and notice what gives this story its power. The unit closes with a set of lessons on poetry. Students read poems that deepen their understanding of slavery, and build their ability to recognize and interpret figurative language—skills that will be critical as they continue their reading of Douglass. The End of Unit 1 Assessment focuses on students’ ability to analyze how structures, word choice, and figurative language contribute to a poem’s meaning.

Guiding Questions And Big Ideas

- What gives stories and poems their enduring power?
- How did Douglass’s purpose and audience shape how he told his story?
- Stories and poems have enduring power because they tell about important or interesting events, people, and places; they have themes that help readers understand the world and often empower people; and they use powerful language and powerful images.
- Douglass wrote the Narrative to convince his audience that slavery should be abolished. Through telling the story of his life, he responded to the reasons that some people gave to justify slavery, and showed why they were mistaken.

Mid-Unit 1 Assessment	Using Evidence to Support Analysis: “Frederick Douglass” (RI.7.1) This assessment centers on NYSP12 ELA CCLS RI.7.1. Students read a text about Douglass, then answer selected and constructed response questions in which they analyze the text and support their conclusions with evidence from the text.
End of Unit 1 Assessment	Reading Poetry: Analyzing Structure and Language in “We Wear the Mask” This assessment centers on NYSP12 ELA CCLS RL.7.4, RL.7.5, and L.7.5a. Students read “We Wear the Mask” and answer constructed and selected response questions about structure, figurative language, sound and form.

Content Connections

This module is designed to address English Language Arts standards as students read literature and informational text related to slavery and Frederick Douglass. However, the module intentionally incorporates Social Studies practices and themes to support potential interdisciplinary connections to this compelling content. These intentional connections are described below.

Big ideas and guiding questions are informed by the New York State Common Core K–8 Social Studies Framework:
<http://engageny.org/sites/default/files/resource/attachments/ss-framework-k-8.pdf>

Social Studies Practices, Gathering, Using, and Interpreting Evidence, Grades 5–8:

- Define and frame questions about events and the world in which we live and use evidence to answer these questions.
- Identify, describe, and evaluate evidence about events from diverse sources (including written documents, works of art, photographs, charts and graphs, artifacts, oral traditions, and other primary and secondary sources).
- Analyze evidence in terms of content, authorship, point of view, purpose, and format; identify bias; explain the role of bias and audience in presenting arguments or evidence.
- Describe and analyze arguments of others.
- Create meaningful and persuasive understandings of the past by fusing disparate and relevant evidence from primary and secondary sources.

Social Studies Key Ideas and Conceptual Understandings, Grade 7

- 7.2e Over the course of the 17th and 18th centuries, slavery grew in the colonies. Enslaved Africans utilized a variety of strategies to both survive and resist their conditions.
- 7.7b Enslaved African Americans resisted slavery in various ways. The abolitionist movement also worked to raise awareness and generate resistance to the institution of slavery.

Texts

1. Virginia Hamilton, The People Could Fly: The Picture Book (New York: Knopf Books for Young Readers, 2004), ISBN: 978-0-375-82405-0. (One copy per teacher; recommended, not required¹).
2. Frederick Douglass, Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass, an American Slave (Project Gutenberg, 2006; originally published Boston, 1845) (Project Gutenberg, 2006; originally published Boston, 1845; no purchase required²).
3. “The Slave Trade,” “Abolition,” and “Frederick Douglass” (texts) from Freedom: A History of US, Webisode 5 (PBS, 2002)
4. Scott Kirkwood, “Renaissance Man,” National Parks, Spring 2013 v87 i2 p1(3).
5. Claude McKay, “If We Must Die”
6. Langston Hughes, “The Negro Speaks of Rivers”
7. Georgia Douglass Johnson, “Black Woman”
8. Lucille Clifton, “slaveships”
9. Eloise Greenfield, “Harriet Tubman”
10. Paul Laurence Dunbar, “We Wear the Mask”

¹ The People Could Fly: The Picture Book is recommended, not required. Schools that do not have the ability to place additional text orders for this school year (2013-14) may choose to seek this widely available book through a school or public library. As an additional alternative, suggested free resources will be named in the lessons in which this book is used.

² Purchase of Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass is not required. All excerpts that students read are provided in the lessons themselves. Schools that already purchased this book are strongly encouraged to use it enhanced close reading.

This unit is approximately 3 weeks or 15 sessions of instruction.

Optional: Experts, Fieldwork, And Service

Experts:

- Ask a local poet to visit your class and share his or her work, as well as the process he/she uses to write poetry.

Fieldwork:

- Consider visiting a museum that has an exhibit about the history of your community during the years leading up to, during, and after the Civil War. Ask students to consider how people living in their community in 1845 might have responded to Douglass's book.
- The PBS website for Freedom: A History of US has many other resources in addition to the text that students read, including many primary sources related to slavery and Douglass. Consider using these resources or others to craft a virtual fieldwork experience for your students to further build their background knowledge about slavery and abolition. The resources that accompany Episode 5 can be found at: <http://www.pbs.org/wnet/historyofus/web05/index.html>.

Optional: Extensions

- Partner with the social studies teacher to support students in an in-depth exploration of a related topic, such as other abolitionists, the Civil War, or Reconstruction.
- Consider a study of slavery in the modern world.
- Frederick Douglass had a long, full life, and this module focuses on only the first part of his life. A full study of his accomplishments would add to students' understanding of the fight for women's rights, the Civil War, Reconstruction, and the Haitian Revolution. Consider having students learn more about Douglass's life after he wrote the Narrative.

Preparation and Materials

Student Materials

Throughout the module, students work with text excerpts, note-catchers, reference sheets, and other handouts that hold their thinking. Students will need to be able to use these over multiple days. Consider what organizational structures in your class might support your students in keeping track of these papers.

Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass

Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass has been published by the Gutenberg Project as a free ebook. Since it is quite a complex text, the lessons in this module have students read a series of excerpts rather than the complete text. All of the text that students need to read is included with the lessons (in supporting materials).

Teachers are strongly encouraged to read the entire Narrative, and to encourage strong readers to consider tackling the complete text as their independent reading book for the module. The Narrative can be found here: <http://www.gutenberg.org/files/23/23-h/23-h.htm>.

Media and Special Materials

In Unit 1, students build their background knowledge by reading texts from the website that accompanies the PBS series Freedom: A History of US. If possible, consider enriching these lessons through using the corresponding DVD (PBS, “Episode 5: A Fatal Contradiction” from Freedom: A History of US DVD 2002).

This PBS video series is not required for this module. However, it is an excellent resource for teaching American history to middle school students: the structure and content are more accessible than those of videos made for an adult audience, but they still do justice to the complexity and richness of the history they recount. Many libraries hold this DVD series; you also can purchase it on the PBS website³. The teaching notes for Unit 1, Lessons 3, 4, and 5 include guidance regarding which specific segments of the video would best support each lesson. In addition, the website includes not just the texts that students read but also images and quotes. If you cannot access the DVD but can access the website, consider having students spend time on the website exploring the additional materials it offers.

Please note that for this module, it is recommended that you use two picture books: The People Could Fly: The Picture Book and Frederick Douglass: The Last Day of Slavery. You will need one copy of each book per classroom. While you do not need Frederick Douglass: The Last Day of Slavery until Unit 2, it is worth considering your options now for how you will obtain both books.

³ If you go through the PBS teacher store, you can buy just one disc rather than the whole series: go to

The People Could Fly

This book is recommended, and is used in Lesson 1 of Unit 1. Schools that do not have the ability to place additional text orders for this school year (2013–14) may choose to seek this widely available book through a school or public library. As an additional alternative, suggested free resources are named in the lessons in which this book is used.

Frederick Douglass: The Last Day of Slavery

This children's book is integral to several lessons in this module, and is widely available in public and school libraries. However, alternate lessons that use a free alternative children's book will be available on EngageNY.org and at commoncoresuccess.elschools.org to accommodate schools/districts that are not able to secure a copy of Frederick Douglass: The Last Day of Slavery.

Additional Poems

This unit includes a 5 lesson sequence on poetry. If you wish to expand the study of poetry, consider using additional poems from the list below.

"Song of the Son" Jean Toomer

"Outcast" Claude McKay

Independent Reading

Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass, the central text of this module, is a complex and challenging text. To support students in understanding this text, they mostly read it in class, with teacher and peer support. For this reason, it is very important to establish and maintain a strong independent reading program in this module so that students read the volume of text necessary to further develop their proficiency as readers. There is a rich set of literature related to slavery in America; see the module documents for a list of texts. If possible, have all students select a text from this list; if you have used literature circles with your students, this would be an excellent opportunity to do so again. The books listed are powerful and compelling; students would benefit from being able to discuss the book they are reading with a partner or small group.

If you are able to have all students read a book from the list of suggested titles, use the independent reading check-in times (provided weekly) for students to discuss their books together and make specific connections to the content of this module by posing questions such as: What makes this a powerful story? How does this story add to or challenge what we learned from the Narrative? What is the narrative arc of this story? How is the author using figurative language and word choice to convey meaning?

This module assumes that you have launched the process and routines of independent reading in earlier modules. (See two separate stand-alone documents on EngageNY.org: The Importance of Increasing the Volume of Reading and Launching Independent Reading in Grades 6–8: Sample Plan, which together provide the rationale and practical guidance for a robust independent reading program.) If you have not, you may need to schedule a week of time in which to do this. If you have already implemented the routines, consider which of your structures will stay the same and which may shift for this unit.

The Unit 1 plans include a lesson (Lesson 5) in which to introduce independent reading for the module. Consider using this time to introduce students to possible titles. By the second independent reading check-in (Lesson 11), all students should have a book and be reading it; consider using this lesson to have students set formal goals for the pace at which they will complete their books. They will continue to have about 20 minutes a week for independent reading check-in, and then a longer block of time near the end of Unit 3 in which to complete the book review task.
